Procedure

 2. Divide the group into 'advisers' and 'clients'.
 3. - The advisers prepare for a 'consultation' activity by brainstorming possible solutions to the each of the problems.
- The clients discuss the problems in more detail.
 4. Teachers conduct a series of face-to-face consultations, with clients seeking practical suggestions from advisers.
 5. After a specified time limit the clients move on to seek further ideas from a different adviser.
 6. Repeat Step 5 several times.
 7. Whole-group feedback discussion to evaluate the usefulness of the suggestions received.
- TIP: Before the session arrange classroom furniture in two concentric circles to facilitate the cycle of consultations in Steps 4-6
